Every October, the American Association of Orthodontists and orthodontists across the country take the spotlight with National Orthodontic Health Month (NOHM). It's our time to reach out together as the orthodontic specialty to tell our patients, our potential patients, our community and our dental/healthcare colleagues our story about the benefits of orthodontics. The Halloween season is the rationale to bring attention to orthodontists and orthodontics, and to remind patients about the dangers of mixing sticky sweets with braces.

While October may be our designated month, Sunga Orthodontics is committed to educating our patients, parents, community, and dental and healthcare colleagues about the importance of orthodontic treatment year round. If you have any questions or concerns about orthodontics, please do not hesitate to contact us!
